With every sun comes a new day.

A new beginning.

A hope that things will be better today than they were yesterday.

But not for me. My name's Hiccup. And this is my family. The Vikings. If you weren't clued already, by animal skin and sloping forehead, we're cavemen. Most days we spend in our cave. In the dark. Night after night, day after day.

Yep. Home sweet home.

When we did go out, we struggled to find food in the harsh and hostile world. And I struggled to survive my family.

We were the last ones around. There used to be neighbors.

The Hoffersons, smashed by a mammoth.

The Thorstons , swallowed by a sand snake.

The Jorgensons, mosquito bite.

The Ingermans, common cold.

And the Vikings.. That's us. The Vikings made it, because of my dad. He was strong, and he followed the rules. The ones painted on our cave walls:

Anything new is bad.

Curiosity is bad.

Going out at night is bad.

Basically, anything fun is bad! Welcome to my world!

But this is a story about how all that changed in an instant. Because what we didn't know, was that our world was about to come to an end. And there were no rules on our cave walls, to prepare us for that.

"â€¦|.AHHHHHHHHHAHHHHHHHHAAHHHHHHHHAAHHHHHH OWW Uh Uh.." Stoick screamed as he ran out the cave, scaring off the wolves.

"RAWWW!" Hiccup screamed climbing on his dad's back to climb onto the wall of the crevasse. Looking over to see the animals taking over his ledge.

"You're supposed to wait for my signal, Hiccup."

"Hiccup?"

Hiccup landed on the ledge and smiled evilly.

"Boo.." he said to the animals, in which scared them, causing them to run and hit Stoick in the face while he got comfortable in his spot.

"We've been in that cave foreverâ€¦|.." he said enjoying the breeze while he looked up at the sun.

"Three days is not foreverâ€¦|"

"It is with this family"

"Hiccup, will you come down here? You're being so... so dramatic." Stoick told his eldest son while leaning up the the ledge, to try and face him. But then a toddler showed up from inside the cave, running in-between Stoick's legs.

"No, no, no, Toothless, come back here! Remember the signal. Good boys wait for the signal." he told his youngest son that was running across the rocky ground, trying to catch the mosquito. His mother then came out of the cave to try and grab him.

"Val!" an annoyed Stoick said to his wife.

"As soon as I get Toothless, I'll go back in, and you can give the signal." Val told her husband, finally grabbing her son.

"No. But you're already out nowâ€¦|"

"I'm waiting for the signal, Dad!" a voice came from inside the cave.

"Never mind, Fishlegs. Just come out." Stoick said to his other son.

"But if you don't give me the signal, how do I know you're my dad?"

"The signal isn't so you know it's me. It's so you know I wasn't eaten by an animal."

"Then why is the signal an animal noise? doesn't that just confuse things? I'm still waiting for the signal."

"Uhhhhh HOOHOO HOOHOO!"

"HHAAAAAAAAARAWWWWWHHHAHAHAHHA!" Fishlegs screamed as he ran out the cave, smashing into Stoick, throwing a rock that caused him to hit Stoick again..while Val tried to get her Dad also known as Gobber out of the cave.

"Dad, we're ready to leave! Dad?" Val called into the cave. Stoick smiled maybe. "Still alive!"

"It's still early" Stoick replied, disappointed.

"And you're still fat!"

"Breakfast formation!" Stoick said, Hiccup smiled and got up smiling. "I want to see some real caveman action out there! We do this fast. We do this loud, we do this as a family, and never not be afraid!"

â€

"Yay! Breakfast.." Fishlegs cried, out of breath.

"Ok who's up?" Stoick said to the family.

"We'll flip for it. Call him in the air." he said while grabbing Gobber and throwing him in the air.

"Heads!" Hiccup cried

"Tails. Fishlegs your in." He said "Positions!" Hiccup had a frown on his face as he stomped off to his position. "Okay. Fishlegs, go! Come on, Fishlegs!" Stoick said to his son, pushing him towards the nest.

Fishlegs ran towards it, looking around to see if the bird of the nest was around. He made it to the nest and grabbed the egg whilst licking his lips and ran back to his dad.

"Way to go! Take it to the cave!" Stoick said to him, using hand signals to lead his son back to the cave. Unfortunately he didn't make it as the bird smashed into him, causing him to fall and drop the egg so the bird could easily reach it.

"Release the baby!" Stoick screamed to Val

"Get 'em, Toothless, go!" Val told Toothless as she released him, he ran like a wild animal chasing its prey. While toothless distracted the bird, Val ran and jumped on the birds head, leading it back to the cave, while she tried to get the egg out of its mouth. Then a animal of a dragon with two heads, also known as a Zippleback came from under the ground and used its tail to trip the bird, Val and Toothless so they could grab the egg.

"Get them, Dad!" Val said to Gobber while Toothless climbed onto her. Gobber used his stick to pick up the tiny Zippleback and grab the egg with it. He was running but the wolfs and other animals followed him to get the egg. He started smashing the animals with his stick, but it didn't work very well so he dropped his stick so he used his handsâ€¦or hand to pick up the egg, a wolf bit his tail however, causing him to fall just like Val and Toothless did.

"Old Man down! Hiccup, avenge me!" he cried to his grandson.

Hiccup caught up to the wolf who stole the egg. The wolf looked back and laughed, but what he didn't know was that Hiccup was in front of him. "Thanks." Hiccup said, as he grabbed the egg while the wolf smashed into a cactus. Just when Hiccup thought that the animals were gone, some bats flew behind him and picked him up.

"Hiccup!" Stoick cried to his son. "Heads up!" Hiccup screamed, while throwing the egg to his dad. He dropped it however, and Fishlegs caught it. Fishlegs slid across the ground, the Mammoth picking him up with his trunk. Stoick threw the rest of the family onto the Mammoth.

"Hey, Dad, can we eat now?" fishlegs asked

"Just wait til we get home." Stoick told him. "Hiccup, put on the brakes!" Stoick said. Hiccup smirked as he and his dad ran their feet against the rocky ground.

"Hiccup!" Stoick screamed when he wasn't paying attention. When hiccup finally looked he gasped. Hiccup had the mammoth fall over which was just enough for the family to get in the crack of the crevasse. The Mammoth smashed so hard that the family and the egg went flying. Stoick saw the egg and grabbed it just in time.

"Who's hungry?" Stoick said raising the egg in victory.

"Yeah way to go Dad!" Fishlegs said.

"Here you go, Fishlegs. Drink up." Stoick said handing the egg to him, but he dropped it.

"Sorry, dadâ€¦."

"Looks like fast food tonight!" Val said as she handed it to each family member. She handed it to Stoick last, so he got the last drop.

"That's all right. I ate last week." he said as he put to fingers in the air up against the sun.

"Two knuckle warning!"

â€|

"Come on, come on. Darkness brings death. We know this." Stoick said to them

"The moon is full. Bath night." Val said grabbing what they call a bath stick.

"Run for your life!"

"You too, Dad."

"I don't want to lose my protective layer."

"Dad, you've got ants. See? Toothless doesn't fuss."

"Is he still out there?" Stoick asked, he was getting worried about hiccup.

"You know he hates the cave, Stoick." Val replied to him.

Hiccup was climbed the wall of the cave, he stood at the edge of it, he leaned out to touch the sun, but he was to late, it was already gone. "Please come back tomorrow." he said sadly.

"How can he not like the cave? It's so cozy."

"It is a little dark, Stoick."

"It's not that darkâ€|Hiccup!"

"uhh.." hiccup sighed, and rolled his eyes, he was about to come down when, he heard a mysterious noise.

"Hiccup? Come on, I gotta close the cave. OW!" Stoick looked up to see his son at the top of the crevasse.

"Hiccup!"

"Okay! Okay!"

"Come on."

â€|

"That was too close!"

"I was watching. I was fine."

"What were you doing up there, Hiccup?"

"I don't know."

"What were you looking for?"

"Nothing."

"Then why did you go up there?"

"I don't know!"

"Why don't you know?"

"Uuggggghhh"

"Stop looking for things!"

"Fear keeps us alive, Hiccup. Never not be afraid."

"What's the point of all this?"

"What was that?"

"I mean, why are we here?! What are we doing this for!?"

"No one said survival was fun."

"Nothing is fun.."

"Hiccup?-" "Stoick!" "Hiccup!" "Off!" "Yes okay-" "Off!"

"I just don't see why he needs his own ledge. That's all. That's what this is about."

"He's working through some things and needs his own space."

"What things? How long is this going to take? Really? I mean, he already doesn't listen to me. Hey!"

"See? He's listening."

"If he wants to survive, he has to follow our rules."

"How about a story? Hiccup loves those."

"That's a good idea. How about a story, huh?"

"Yeah, tell us a story."

"Okay. Can I borrow that? Thank you. Hiccup! Your old favourite!" Stoick told him taking the toy off Toothless.

"I haven't played with that thing in years."

"Tonight we'll hear the story of Krispy Bear. A long time ago, this little bear was alive. He was alive because he listened to his father and lived his life in routine, darkness and terror. So he was happy. But Krispy had one terrible problem. he was filled withâ€¦curiosity."

"Stoick!"

"Yes, yes. And one day, while he was in a tree, the curious little bear wanted to climb to the top. And no sooner had he climbed to the top, he saw something new andâ€¦died!"

"Just like that?"

"Yes! His last moments of terror still frozen on his face."

"Same ending as every day."

"I get it, Dad. I get it. I will never do anything new or different."

"Good man, Fishlegs."

"All right, everyone sharpen your teeth and let's pile up" Val said as they fell asleep one by one. Stoick was the last to fall asleep, the last thing he saw was Hiccup moving further away from him.

3. Hiccup Meets Jack

HELLO EVERYONE! Im back with another chapter of The Vikings! I really hope you like this chapter!

ENJOY!

â€"

Hiccup couldn't fall asleep, something was bothering him. Just when he thought it couldn't get any worse, he heard a large noise coming from outside the cave. He looked through a little hole, and saw something he would never expect at night.

He sawâ€|a light?

He decided to investigate, so he slipped out of the cave, and went to see what the light was.

â€|

"Air.."

"You talk?"

"I'm a person, like you."

FLASH BACK **

At least five minutes after Hiccup went out of the cave, he had found a weird light source. He was about to touch it, when a sort of fairy came up from behind him. Hiccup had pushed the fairy over and grabbed a rock, when the fairy revealed itself to have hands. The fairy then took off its mask, showing a boy, looking just a little older than Hiccup, with white hair and sapphire eyes. The boy tilted his head at Hiccup and smiled, which caused him to drop the rock on the boy, making him scream, so Hiccup shut him up by placing his hand on the white haired boy's mouth. He got Hiccup back however, but hitting him with a stick.

END OF FLASHBACK

Hiccup was curious about this boy.

"Sort of...like you" the boy replied as Hiccup started sniffing him.

"Okay, okay. Hey, hey, hey, hey...could you, could you mind not...that tickles!" The boy laughed as Hiccup searched all over the boy, but stopped when he saw a weird animal around the boys hips.

"AHHH!" Hiccup screamed dropping the boy. "OWW-" Hiccup cut the boy off with his foot. "Quiet! I am not supposed to be out here." Hiccup said before the boy bit his foot.

Stoick woke up, he knew something was wrong. He looked over at Hiccup's ledge, Hiccup was not there. Stoick woke his wife up.

"Hiccup's gone"

"What? Stoick!-"

"Stay in the cave." he said firmly to her, as he slipped outside.

"Wow, you're really strong!" The white haired boy said, as the light ran out, he ran to it.

"No! It's mine!" "Please-" "No! No!" "But it's dying!-" "I caught it!" "I can fix it! Please!please. I hate the dark!"

Shocked, Hiccup stepped out of the way.

"Come on, come on!" The boy said to the light, blowing on it, making it come back to life.

"It does what you tell it?" Hiccup asked.

"Well, yeah, sort of." The boy said, sitting down next to Hiccup.

"A Sun?"

"No, no. Fire!"

"Hi, Fire!" Hiccup said.

"It's not alive." The boy laughed.

"But you said it was dying."

"Sorry."

"It comes from where you come from?" Hiccup asked him.

"No. No, I make it." The boy said, moving his arms around.

"Make some for me" "Okay!-" "Make! It doesn't come out of me-" "Make! Make! Make it!"

"You do this a lotâ€¦" The boy stuttered as he fell over.

"â€¦Are you dead? Can I have your fire if you're dead?" Hiccup asked, before the mysterious animal checked to see if the boy was alright, before putting two rocks against his chest.

"Hey, those are cold! You think? Listening shells, activate. I concur. Fishbone boy, we need to leave immediately-"

"I don't even know you!" Hiccup said.

"Oh..I'm Jack."

"Jack?"

"And this is Baby Tooth. Cook, conversationalist, navigator. Also keeps my pants up." as Jack placed Baby Tooth around his hips again.

"What are 'pants up'?" Hiccup asked tilting his head.

"Who are you?"

"Oh..Hiccup."

"Let me clarify, Hiccup, the world is ending."

"What?"

"I'm calling it... "The End." Jack said, putting his hands up.

"How do you know?" A shocked Hiccup asked.

"I've seen it. It's coming this way. First, the ground is gonna shake. Then it breaks open. Everything falls in. Fire. Lava. Believe me, everything we're standing on, all this right here, will be gone. We've got to get to high ground. I know a mountain. That way. It's our only chanceâ€¦..come with me." Jack said to Hiccup, holding a hand out towards him.

"Iâ€¦can't."

"Okay. Okay. Here." Jack took out a mysterious object, blowing into it, which made the noise Hiccup had heard before. Jack held it out to him, and Hiccup took it while experimenting with it.

"If you survive, call me."

"heheheheâ€¦thank youâ€¦.hello? Hey!â€¦.Dad!"

"Are you hurt?" Stoick asked, checking his son. "What took you?"

"Nothing! I left on my own!"

"You.. what?"

"Dad, let me explain-"

Hiccup couldn't finish his sentence as his dad dragged him away from the monsters that were walking around them.

"You never let me talkâ€|"

"You're grounded."

YAY NEW CHAPTER! This one will contain some httpd (2) referencesâ€|..

â€|

"Hiccup!" Val said running over to her son.

"Mom!" Hiccup cried running to her as well, to him it honestly felt like he hadn't seen her for twenty years. Or maybe he was just excited to tell her about his discovery, hoping she'd be more understanding than his father had been.

"Stoick!" As soon as she reached her son, he grabbed hold of him. "What happened?" Val asked, while checking over her son in the same manner Hiccup had dne to Jack the night before.

"You know what, I am so mad right nowâ€|." Stoick huffed, casting a look behind his shoulder to look at his son. "that I can't talk to him."

"Hiccup?" She asked in a tone of warning authority.

That did nothing to deter the boy's excitement. "You'll never believe it!" he grinned, and Stoick secretly leaned closer to listen to what got his son excited. "I found somethingâ€|new-"

"NEW!?" The whole family shrieked

"New is a big problem!" The family screamed grabbing rocks as quickly as possible, surrounding Hiccup, even Val. So much for understanding.

Hiccup grunted, even if his family always smothers him didn't mean he was used to it. "Wait, wait-" he tried saying.

"Hiccup, stay inside the family kill circle."

"It wasn't badâ€|.I mean not as bad as toothlessâ€|."

Hiccup said, looking down at the toddler who rolled his eyes as if to say really?

"Oh come on budâ€¦you know I love you.." Hiccup smiled, scratching Toothless so that he fell on his back so Hiccup could scratch his belly. Hiccup and his brother got along well, especially since Toothless wasn't exactly his brotherâ€¦

"Momâ€¦theres something in the caveâ€¦" Fishlegs said, while he hid behind Val.

"Step aside girl.." Gobber said to Fishlegs, walking into the cave. The rest of the family waited outside, when Gobber came out he was holding a toddler, with green eyes and black hair, held back together in a braid. "It,s a boy.." he said. Stoick went over to thisâ€¦boy, he was about to hit him with a stick when,

"DAD! WHAT ARE YOU DOING?!" Hiccup screamed running over to his father and grabbing the stick out of his hand. "here little guyâ€¦" Hiccup said, holding his hand out to touch Toothless. He growled at Hiccup.

"Hiccup!" Stoick said.

"Dadâ€¦just let me show you.." Hiccup said, looking away and holding his hand out towards Toothless, he then sniffed Hiccups hand and relaxed into it.

END OF FLASHBACK

Ever since then, the two boys have been inseparable.

"New is always badâ€¦" Stoick said getting back on topic.

Hiccup rolled his eyes, "Toothless wasn'tâ€¦ Well, generally speaking." He pointed out, "And he was nice."

"What?" Stoick starts, looking over his son suspiciously. "Excuse me? He?!"

"Well, I thought he was a fairy, but then he turned into a boy." Hiccup smiled dreamily, grabbing one of his auburn locks, twirling it in-between his fingers. He honestly never felt like this before, he had been in love once, but that was a girl. A Hofferson, Astrid. Till she and her family, you know, got dead. And Hiccup realized while it hurt, it didn't hurt THAT much. Nothing happened anyway.

And Jack was a boy, what would Stoick think of him? Would he hurt him?

"Strange. Usually its the reverseâ€¦"

"Hiccup's got a boy fairy! Hiccup's got a boy- OW!" Hiccup hit his brother, the rounder one, annoyed though blushing.

The brunette huffed. "There was a boy. Watch, okay? I'm gonna call him." Hiccup smiled, taking out the shell Jack had given him, His family gasped, stepping away from him. Hiccup intakes a lot of air before he starts blowing into it until Stoick slapped it off his hand, and destroyed it. The brunette can only watch in horror till his family backed away, Toothless throwing a piece he still to join the other shattered pieces.

28m agoHiccup leaned down and picked the shell up, he felt like something was missing now. He glared up at his family, "What is wrong with you?!" he growled,

"It was dangerous!" Stoick said simply.

Hiccup couldn't believe this. "It was beautiful! You want to see dangerous?" he looked down to the pieces, dropping them all till one remained. "Here!" Hiccup screamed throwing a piece of the broken shell towards them, Val and Stoick avoided it, alert. Fishlegs wasn't.

"Ow! My sniffer!" he whined, "I was gonna use it later..."

The parents looked at their eldest incredulously.

"Okay, Hiccup, that's it! We're going back to the cave and your going to stay in there until your older than," Stoick looked around, before spotting his father-in-law. "You know.. him!" he referred Gobber, who growled at him.

Hiccup gaped, "What?! You cant keep me inside forever!" He screamed. He screamed some more, he cried, he kicked rocks in anger, throwing his arms in the air wildly like a baby wanting something from its mother.

He stopped however, when the ground and all the rocks around the family started shaking. He widened his eyes. "Jack said this would happen!" Hiccup said, picking up a now growling Toothless, the ground cracking underneath them both.

"Get to the cave!" Stoick screamed, just in time to see the crevasse falling apart. "Go!" He screamed as the family ran towards the cave. Fishlegs got caught between a boulder, Hiccup had to put Toothless in his shoulder before climbing over Fishlegs and pulling him out, Val took Hiccup's hand, making sure they followed behind quick. Rocks were dropping on them, Stoick was left behind, He climbed the walls that were closing in, just in time to see the rocks were about to ruin the cave, his family running towards it.

"Look out!" He screamed. He looked over and grabbed a rock, throwing it at Fishlegs.

"Stop!" Stoick screamed as he ran towards the now tumbling family because of the rock that he had thrown. He made his way to the family and covered them, as the crevasse fell apart.

â€¦

Dirt and rocks covered the ground around the family. When Stoick thought it was safe, he let go of the family, coughing and covered in dirt.

Cough Cough "Is everyone okay?" Stoick asked.

Cough "Yes." Val told her husband before frowning and looking dejected. "Stoick, the cave. Its gone." She said, the family now looking at the place where the cave used to be.

Nothing but a pile of rubble.

"No.." He said, going over and searching through the pile of rubble, as he took two broken pieces, and connected them, so it was a hand.

Hiccup went over to his father, as he put toothless down. He knew this would happen, Jack said so, but, what were they supposed to do now? He was a bit guilty, somehow feeling this was his fault for no good reason at all. He had the reputation of messing things up. Hiccup looked over, and walked towards the edge, where his ledge used to be.

Then he was blown out of his mind.

"You really need to see this!" he said in a hushed tone, and his family went to see what he was talking about.

Trees and animals were completely surrounding the place. Wild life and green vegetations. It was like a whole new world!

"We should go there!" Hiccup said about to jump over the ledge, only to have Stoick stop him catching him by the waist.

"No. No. No one is going anywhere." He narrowed his eyes. looking over the place, scanning the area. He leaned towards Hiccup. "what else did that boy say?" Stoick asked his son.

As soon as Stoick said this, a rainbow coloured bird flew across the family.

"Woah.."

Hiccup felt something on his leg. He looked down and saw Toothless. "What is it bud?" He asked the toddler. Toothless motioned his head towards the ledge. Hiccup looked at this new land and then back at toothless. "you got it bud" he said as he grabbed the toddler and jumped over the ledge.

"HICCUP!" Stoick screamed. "â€|.OH FOR THE LOVE OF!" he shouted as he grabbed the other family members and jumped over the ledge.

â€|

"One, two, three, four, five, six" Stoick started after the family fell down.

"Where are we?" Gobber asked.

"I don't know. I'm not sure. Down. In a lower place. But, one things for sure, we cant go back the way we came." Stoick said, but then Toothless started growling.

"Toothless? What is it?" Val asked as Toothless ran into some bushes.

"No, no. Wait. Come back, Toothless!" Stoick grabbed his son, who was holding an animal in his mouth. "AHH! EWW!" Stoick screamed, flicking the animal out of Toothless's mouth.

"We cant be out in the open like this. We need a cave. Now step where I step" Stoick said, stepping in completely wrong places.

"Okay. Stay quiet. Hopefully nothing big knows were here yet."

"Wait! Okay. Wait! Okay."

Hiccup rolled his eyes at his father's over caution. If they were gonna stop at every step forward, they might as well not move at all.

"Wait! Wait! Okay. Wait! Wait!"

Hiccup sighed, this was gonna be a long dayâ€|

5. Bad Survivors

Hello! I am here with another chapter ofâ€|.The Vikings!

I hope you guys are voting on my poll cause I don't know what to publish next!

Enjoy!

â€"

The Vikings continued to search for a cave. Hiccup was still mad, he wanted to find Jack. He figured anything with Jack would be better than this. But there was one flawâ€|..he was still grounded.

"So Dad, just to be clear, are we looking for the exact same cave?" Fishlegs asked, trying to make conversation. "Okay. If it was me... Im throwing this out there. If it was me choosing the cave, I would go with a smaller cave." He suggested.

Hiccup rolled his eyes. He loved his family, really he did butâ€|.they just embarrassed him sometimesâ€|.ok make that all the time.

"Wait!" Stoick said stopping in his tracks..â€|again. He looked up to see a bunch of Terrible Terrors staring down at him. "Ill take care of this" Stoick said as he turned to the family and then back to the Terrible Terrors. He screamed, he yelled, he cursed, he even hit himself, but the Terrible Terrors just stood there.

"AAHHH! Ah uhâ€|..hmm.." Stoick stuttered as he stared at the Terrible Terrors before one of them spit out the seed they had in their mouth and punched Stoick in the face. "All right, Dad, get 'em! Go get em!" Fishlegs screamed as Stoick constantly ran into the Terrible Terrors and surprisingly, Gobbers fists.

"Im loving this!" Gobber laughed as he punched Stoick again.

"Dad, I got this. Just stop running into their fists!" Fishlegs screamed as he stood in front of the rest of the family. "Stoick, when your done, we should get going." Val said to her husband as she rolled her eyes.

The Terrible Terrors lifted Stoick up and were checking him, when they looked in the direction of the family, dropped Stoick and ran off. "Thats right! You cant get past this!" Stoick boasted as he flexed his mussels. The family looked behind him, startled. They slowly back away from him. He turned around to see a blue dragon with white spots on his back, also known as a Thunder Drum dragon. Stoick jumped in front of his family as the dragon roared in anger. He looked down at the ground so he could pick up a rock. He threw the rock towards the dragon but, he caught it leaving the family in gasps. The Thunder Drum looked at the rock he had caught and roared in anger.

"Climb! Climb! Climb!" Stoick screamed as the family climbed up a large tree only for it to grow legs and run off while the family screamed. The trees shook the family off and ran away. Stoick looked around for shelter. "Cave! Go! Go!" he screamed. "Come on, hurry up! Lets go! Come on!" he said before the cave closed the door itself.

"Hey, look! This cave has a tongue! Awesome!" Fishlegs said.

It wasn't a cave.

The animal spat out the family and they flew in the air. They landed face first on the ground. "Okay. That's one, two, three, four, five, Six." Stoick head countered. "And seven, if were counting Thornado the Death Dragon." Gobber motioned his head behind the family. They turned around, but before Thornado could pounce, he looked at the sky, whined and ran away.

"He's scared of the dark! Wait, were scared of the dark." Fishlegs said as he got closer to his father. The family looked around and saw a bunch of dragons flying about. "Wowâ€|" they all said in unison until the dragons swooped down and ate the animal that the family thought was a cave.

"Kill circle!" Stoick screamed as each family grabbed a rock and got into position as the dragons got closer. Hiccup looked down and saw a horn. He ran out of the circle and grabbed it, blowing into it as it made the same noise as it did with the shell that Jack had given him.

"Hiccup!" Stoick screamed at his son, while he held out his hand, wanting his son to take it.

At least 10 metres away, Jack was walking in the direction of the mountain. When he heard the noise Hiccup was making he turned around and smirked, only to stop when he saw the herd of dragons surrounding Hiccup.

Hiccup continued blowing the horn, Jack said he would come, he promised.

"Hiccup!" Stoick once again screamed for his son, before a white haired boy jumped in front of Hiccup and the family as he made a shining light before he held it up as the dragons flew away. Hiccup held onto Jack for his dear life, his arms around Jack's neck. The dragons eventually flew off. Hiccup had noticed how close he was to Jack, before blushing and letting go of him.

"TADA!" Jack said as he threw his arms up in victory. Hiccup dreamily sighed at him, before Stoick stood in front of him, scaring Jack. The family soon surrounded Hiccup and Jack.

"Cavies!"

"Cavies?"

"Cavemen! Stand back! They're practically animals!" Jack snarled. "See their bony, sloping foreheads?!" he gestured to Fishlegs.

"Yeah!"

"The huge primitive teeth?!" He gestured to Toothless.

"Yeahâ€|"

"The excessive body hair?! That one even got a tail!" He gestured to Gobber.

"Yeahâ€|"

"All right. Close your eyes. I'm going to have to take their lives." Jack said as he took out his dagger before Hiccup stopped him. "No! It won't helpâ€|their my familyâ€|" Hiccup sighed. "What?" Jack said. Fishlegs tried to act scary, but Jack put the fire in front of his face.

"The sun is in his hands!" He screamed as he hid his face.

"No, no, it's fire." Hiccup reassured him.

"Where did it come from?" Val asked

"He made it."

"Make some for me!" Stoick shouted before picking up Jack and doing the same thing Hiccup had did when he wanted the fire.

"Dad it doesn't come out of him-" "Make! Make it!"

Stoick dropped Jack, as he stumbled and fell.

"You know, you're a lot like your son."

"Oh, great, now hes broken!" Hiccup said to his dad, not even paying attention to the rest of the family.

"Oh, its a baby sun!" Val said as she got closer and closer to touch the fire.

"Whoa! Hey! Stay back! We don't know what it wants. Now well all sit here and wait for the sun to come back. And tomorrow well find a new cave and pretend today never happened." Stoick said as he constantly tried to keep the family away from the fire.

"Isnt this funâ€¦Hiccup? Hiccup, don't touch him! Goodness knows where he's been." Stoick said as he dragged his son away from the white haired boy.

"Dad, Toothless is hurting fire!"

"Toothless! No! Fire is not a plaything."

"What a cute little guy."

"Hey, stay back!" Stoick screamed as he grabbed the rock with his toe. He screamed and let go before Gobber swallowed it. "No, no, no, wait!" He screamed as he took the rock out of Gobbers mouth as it landed on Fishlegs.

"It likes me! Hey! Its biting me!" He screamed as he started running. "Fishlegs! Try hiding from it in the tall, dry grass!" Stoick said, it only just made it worse. "uhhâ€¦" "Stop, please! Im only nine! Your biting me!"

"Fire babies!" Val said as she looked at the madness in front of her.

Jack eventually woke up to find a Hiccup in his face.

Literally.

"Hi." Hiccup smirked.

"So, your dad, he's trying to kill me."

"Yeah. But I wont let him." Hiccup said helping Jack up to see the madness in front of them.

"Hold on, son, come back!-" "It won't stop!" "Eat up, babies!" The family said, screamed, shouted, did.

Jack started walking away before Hiccup grabbed him."You know, their not so scary once you get to know them." Hiccup said before the family came in and swooped Hiccup and Jack off their feet.

Literally.

"Who are you people?" a scared Jack said.

"Oh, Im sorry. Were the Vikings!" Val said. "And you are?"

"Uhâ€|Jack?"

"Hi Jack!" Everyone except for Stoick said, before they flew into the air and fell. The next thing they knew there were lights brightening up the sky.

"Looks like magic! And smells like food!" Fishlegs said before the lights fell down on them.

"No, don't eat it, it's new!" Stoick gestured to Fishlegs.

6. Finally Surviving

Hello everyone!

*I am once again, very sorry for the wait of this chapterâ€|..I have reasons! So if you guys thought that I was dead or something, then you are wrong, because I been on tumblr recently. ****

Well basically my reasons are:

*School (of course) They give us assignments during school holidays! -_- ****

This chapter is insanely long

*I have started to become interested with you tubers and all that, so if you guys want me to do fan fictions of them (your favourites of course), then you can just PM me. ****

*I have been really busy, especially during school holidays, as my parents usually sort out what I do, then don't tell me until they actually start -_- (parents these days..) ****

*There will be some twists in this chapter and I also have deleted some of the script from The Croods to add in some from HTTYD and ROTG. I am also very sorry if there is any spelling mistakesâ€| ****

Enjoy!

*P.S - If you guys see brackets (like this), you should know that those are not part of the story. They are just my POV. ****

P.P.S - Thank God I finished this chapter!

****:)*

â€"

"Still Alive!" The family screamed as they jumped out of the (uhh..) food (?)

Meanwhile a little far down, Jack had his own problems. "Come on, keep eating!" He said to Baby Tooth as they climbed out. Jack sighed. He thought that everything would be fine, until..

"Hey, where's Jack?"

â€|

Jack ran, he looked back to see Hiccup running after him. The white haired male looked in front of him and ran faster, but Hiccup was way faster. The auburn haired male pounced onto Jack, making both boys fall onto the ground. Jack face planted in the dirt.

"Going somewhere?!" Hiccup said, his body still on Jacks.

"The Mountain. High ground, end of the world, remember?!" Jack said as he started to panic, spiting out some of the dirt.

"That already happened." Hiccup smirked. "It destroyed our cave."

"No. That was just the beginning of the end. The end of the end is still coming." Jack said.

Hiccup rolled his eyes and buried himself into Jack even more. "AHHH!" The older male screamed. "How are you doing this?!" He said to Hiccup. Hiccup was confused. He looked over at Jack and pouted. "What? What are you saying?" He asked crossing his arms. "Well I mean..compared to your father your a bit of a fishbone." Jack said.

Hiccup rolled his eyes. He had heard this before, from Gobber.

*FLASHBACK ****

"He never lets me out.." Hiccup said

"I know Hiccup" Gobber told his grandson.

"He never listensâ€|" Hiccup said rolling his eyes.

"Well, it runs in our family." Gobber told him.

"And when he does, it's always with this... disappointed scowl!" He screamed.

"Excuse me, barmaid. I'm afraid you brought me the wrong offspring! I ordered an extra large boy with beefy arms! Extra guts and glory on the side! This here, this is a talking fish bone!" Hiccup said as he mimicked his father.

"You're thinking about this all wrong. It's not so much what you look like. It's what's inside that he can't stand." Gobber said.

"Thank you, for summing that up." Hiccup rolled his eyes.

END OF FLASHBACK

"Thank you, for summing that up.." Hiccup rolled his eyes at the white haired male.

"Hiccup!"

Hiccup turned around to see his father glaring at him and Jack. "Off it.." His father ordered. Hiccup pouted and slowly started to get off Jack, when he got an idea and sat back down, making the older male scream out in pain again. "We can't let him go! What if we don't find a cave before sunset?! What if it takes a few days?! What if theâ€|flying things come back!?" He waved his arms up in the air to explain.

Stoick glared at his son, confused. Gobber went up behind him.

"We need his fire, dummy!" Gobber said rolling his eyes.

Stoick realised and smiled evilly at Jack. Jack widened his eyes, as he scrambled to get out from underneath Hiccup. Stoick looked around, seeing a log, he picked it up and went over to the boys.

"Fine. Your staying with us until we find a cave." Stoick said, pushing Hiccup off Jack and putting Jack inside the log. Hiccup smiled, however Jack looked unamused. "What? No, Im not! Don't make me part of this!" Jack argued. "Stay here if you want, but let me go. Ive got a dream, a mission, a reason to live!" Jack screamed. "Not anymore!" Hiccup said smiling.

"Umm, Ive got an idea. Lets go to that Mountain!" Jack said as the family looked to what he was talking about.

"It's too far." Stoick said turning back around.

Hiccup went closer to Jack and whispered in his ear. "Dad really has his heart set on a cave." Jack groaned and quickly thought of an idea. "There are caves on that Mountain!" He said. Hiccup looked surprised. "Have you been there?" He asked. Jack looked shocked. "It's a mountain. Mountains are safe. Mountains have cavesâ€|.water and sticks!"

Fishlegs soon heard this and started jumping up and down. "Mom, did you hear that? I can get my own stick!" He screamed shaking Val. Jack hearing this, smiled evilly. "Yes! Sticks. And caves. Caves and sticks. Crazy sticks. Let's go!" he said until Stoick shushed him.

"Quiet!" He said to the white haired male.

Stoick thought about this for a minute stroking his beard, before rolling his eyes and turning round back to the family. "Ive made a decision. We are going to.. that mountain!" He said, pointing to the mountain that Jack said. "Don't ask me why. Its just a hunch. It just feels right." He nodded his head.

Val turned to look at her husband. "I don't know, Stoick. We've never really walked that far." she said. Fishlegs nodded in agreement. "I don't think my feet can do that.."

"Oh, come on, just think. Our whole family, packed together on a long, slow trip across country? Days and nights with just each other?

We'll tell stories. We will laugh. Ha ha ha HA! We'll become closer as a family!" Stoick smiled grabbing the family, including Jack, in a bunch.

â€|

"Get him off! Get him off!" Fishlegs screamed as Toothless clawed into his face. Val, looking unamused grabbed Toothless. "If you're not ready to challenge him, then don't look him in the eye!" She said as Fishlegs covered his eyes. Gobber hit Toothless with his stick. "Could you keep your big giant arms on your side of the trail?!" He said, causing Toothless to attack again on him.

Hiccup however was ahead of them skipping along with flowers in his hair while chatting, well, flirting with Jack.

"Isn't this fun? Were taking our first trip together.." he smiled at Jack, but then got pushed by the other members of the family, making him mad.

"Stop shoving, or I will pull out your tongue!" he screamed.

Stoick looked back at the others trying to talk to them, but mainly talking to himself. "Do you want me to turn this family around? Do you? Because I will turn this family around so fast!" he screamed turning back around to walk in the right direction. However he was interrupted by Fishlegs.

"Dad, I gotta go!" he said holding himself.

"Come on, you can hold it." Stoick said rolling his eyes.

"I don't think so." Fishlegs shook his head.

The rest of the day was basically the family arguing with each other. With conversations like, "Toothless, take that out of your mouth!" Or "I didn't touch it!" Or "Grandpa!"

The family then had to stop becauseâ€|

"I still gotta go!" Fishlegs said once again for the hundredth time. "Fine, just look around and make it fast." Stoick sighed. The journey then continued, with more complaining.

"Quit it!"

"Something bit me!"

"I don't blame it!"

Hiccup eventually got bored and bugged Stoick. "Dad" he said "Can I take a turn carrying him?" "No." Stoick told him. "How about now?" he asked again. "No!" "Now?" "No!" "Now?!" Hiccup screamed. "I can do this all day long! No, no, no, and still no!" Stoick screamed to Hiccup who was now pouting. The rest of the family kept complaining.

"Im not dying on an empty stomach!" Gobber cried.

"Stoick..we're all pretty tired!" Val screamed to her husband. She had bags under her eyes and her hair was messier than usual.

"We'll eat when we get there." Stoick rolled his eyes. He too was looking a bit messy as well.

"It's taking too long!" Gobber screamed again, throwing his stick away, so Toothless could catch it and jumped onto the log, looking at Baby Tooth. "I'm grabbing a snack.." he started reaching out for her, but stopped when she pulled out a shiny, sharp object.

"Don't do that!" Jack warned. "She will cut you. That's not food, she's a pet. My pet." he said. Gobber just looked at him, confused. "What's a pet?" he asked. "An animal you don't eat." Jack answered. Gobber just laughed. "We call those children.." he smirked, pointing towards a growling Toothless.

"No man should have a pet!" Stoick said. "It's weird. And wrong. It's not its food!"

"No, no, please!" Jack begged.

"Not that." Stoick rolled his eyes at Baby Tooth as he dropped the log. "That!" Stoick pointed to a large bird that was sitting in its nest, protecting its egg.

"Food fixes everything!" he said. He walked over to Fishlegs, who was lying on the ground, panting. "All right, show me your hunting face." he said, pulling him up. "Roar!" Fishlegs said. He was probably about to pass out. Hiccup went up behind Fishlegs. "ROAR!" He screamed. "Not you! You're still grounded." Stoick said, pushing Hiccup away. "Come on, Fishlegs." "But my feet hurt!"

Hiccup snarled, looking over at Jack. He picked up the log, jumping onto it, also known as Jack's head, making the older male wince. "Oww.." He said. Hiccup climbed up onto a large rock, watching his father and brother. Jack looked up at Hiccup. "You look tense." he said. "I'm not tense." Hiccup replied immediately.

Gobber walked over to Jack. "Angry boy wants to do what they're doing." he told him, pointing to Stoick and Fishlegs. Jack looked over at them.

"I wasn't ready!" "Hang on, Fishlegs. I'm coming."

Fishlegs was running with the egg, the bird chasing him, Stoick not far behind.

Jack, confused, looked at Val. "What are they doing?" he asked. "Hunting." Val replied. Now Jack looked even more confused. "No, seriously, what are they doing?" he asked again.

"You've got a ton of eggs. Just make another egg!" Fishlegs screamed at the bird. The bird grabbed him with his beak, throwing him up into the air, making him drop the egg and cause a large thud on the ground. The bird grabbed the egg and ran back to its nest, which was at the top of a large rock. The bird laughed at Fishlegs.

"Now you're just rubbing it in!" Fishlegs said before the bird jumped off the rock, onto Fishlegs.

â€|

"There. Who's hungry for scorpion?" Stoick said as he placed the scorpion on a rock. Everyone started to eat, all except Jack.

"umâ€|.what happened to the egg and the bird?" Jack asked.

"You know, we lost 'em. But when the bird stepped on me and pushed me into the ground, the scorpion grabbed a hold of me, and you know, one thing led to another and here we are, eating him. So, win-win." Fishlegs told him.

"Not enough. Not enough." Gobber said, crawling around on the rock in search of more food. "I need more. I need more!" he growled looking down at Jack, who was too scared to take his head out of the log. "Oh, look at that. He's not g..gonna eat me, right?" he stuttered.

"Your too skinny." Val told him. "If he was going to eat anyone, it would be-" "Mom! he locked his jaw!" Everyone turned to see Gobber and Fishlegs, his foot in his mouth. Hiccup sighed, an unamused expression on his face. He opened his palm and stretched his arm out to Val. His mother knew what he wanted as she grabbed Gobber's stick and gave it to her son. The rest of the family stood up going over to the other two. Jack was left alone.

Jack just watched, his eyes wide. He felt something inside the log, he looked inside and out popped Baby Tooth. She motioned her head towards the family, then towards the mountain, before getting off the log and pushing it away from the family.

"Hurry! Put the stick in his mouth!" Fishlegs screamed as Stoick grabbed him, while Toothless and Val grabbed Gobber. Hiccup put the stick in Gobber's mouth, shaking it a bit, before stopping and looking over to see Jack. Hiccup dropped the stick and ran over to him, jumping onto the log to stop it from rolling away.

"Why are you rolling away?" he asked. "I just want something to eat!" Jack pouted. "You have bug for dinner. Plenty of bug!" Hiccup told him, pulling on his ear. Jack winced in pain. "Oww! Please!" he begged before getting an idea. "I'll let you help me hunt." he said. Hiccup eyes lit up. "Really?" he said letting go of Jacks ear. Jack smiled and nodded. Hiccup then let him out of the log. They both looked back at the family, before running off.

â€|

Jack and Hiccup spent what felt like an hour on the project that Jack had told Hiccup about. They were just about done. "Okay." Jack said stepping back. Hiccup looked up at the creation, amazed. "Soâ€|do you have a name forâ€|this?" he asked looking at Jack. "Wellâ€|not yetâ€|..do you wanna name it?" he asked. Hiccup looked back at Jack. He could of sworn Jack had blushed. "Really?" Hiccup asked. Jack nodded. Hiccup smiled, then looked back up at the creation. "A trap." Hiccup said nodding. "What does it do?" Hiccup said looking back at Jack.

"Wellâ€|" Jack started, then started making hand signals. "Tada!" He said when he finished. Hiccup blinked. "How long have you been alone?" he said. Hiccup felt a tap on his shoulder. Looking over, he saw Baby Tooth. She sighed, stretching her arms out as far as she could. Hiccup looked back over at Jack. "So what do we do?"

"How's your herding?"

â€|

Jack and Hiccup looked out from their hiding place, they saw the bird was about to eat a Zippleback. When Jack knew it was good to go, he threw the bait - Baby Tooth. She looked back at him, glaring. He nodded at her, motioning for her to go forward. She rolled her eyes, then she whistled, getting the birds attention. She then started to fly away. The bird went after her.

"Ok" Jack said starting to turn back around to Hiccup. "I think she-" He stopped talking however, when he came face to face with him, their noses brushed against each other. Hiccup felt Jack's breath on his face. It was cold and made him shiver, but he liked it. "um..I uhâ€|I.." Jack stuttered. They both started to lean in, that is until the bird discovered their secret hiding place, grabbing Jack with its beak, swaying him in the air. Hiccup looked up at Jack.

"It didn't step in the trap." He said.

"Yeah" Jack replied. "I NOTICED!" he screamed when the bird let go. Hiccup watched as Jack flew away from him, Baby Tooth watching and laughing.

Meanwhile, Stoick was looking for the two boys. He had searched everywhere. He picked up Jack's log, looking inside of it. He put it down when he started to hear screaming. He heard a crunch. He looked over at the log to see Jack inside it. He put a grumpy face on. "Where's Hiccup?" he asked sternly. Jack smiled nervously. "uh.." he started before they both heard a growling noise.

They both turned to see Hiccup running after the bird. Jack blushed and smiled like an idiot. "He's awesomeâ€|" he sighed. Stoick growled at Jack before dropping the log and running to his son.

"Hiccup!" He screamed. But what he didn't know, was that he was running towards the trap.

"Dad, no!" Hiccup screamed running to his dad and pulling him back just in time, causing the bird to run into the trap and be thrown high up into the air, before coming back down, a large thud being heard from miles away.

â€|

"It's an avalanche of flavor!" Fishlegs said happily before grabbing another piece of the bird.

It was now later at night and the family was eating the bird like it would be their last meal. Jack however, was in the corner with Baby Tooth, eating silently whilst watching the family. Only stopping to give Gobber a piece before deciding to eat Jack.

He looked over to see Hiccup smiling and waving at him. He gulped and smiled back. Hiccup went over to him, sitting down beside him. "Aren't you gonna eat?" he asked. Hiccup looked at him and tilted his head. "I mean like, you gotta eat if you don't wanna be a fishbone." Jack laughed. Hiccup punched him lightly in the arm. "shut up.." he said, unamused, but then laughed. They looked back at the rest of the family. "Looks like we won't have any leftovers." Jack said. Hiccup now looked more confused then ever.

"What are leftovers?" he asked. "You know, when you have so much food to eat you have some left over." Jack answered. "Oh." Hiccup said while picking his teeth. "We never have that much food."

Stoick and Val were listening to the conversation. Stoick looked down, a sad expression on his face. Val comforted him, before saying "Stoick, how about a story?"

"Thats a good idea." he said looking back up. "How about a story, huh?" he told everyone.

"Yeah, a story! Tell us a story!" Fishlegs said happily.

They all gathered around a big rock. Except for Jack who stayed a little bit behind, but still wanting to hear. Stoick picked up some sand and started his story.

"Once upon a time there was a little fishbone, who lived in a cave with his family." He said starting to draw on the rock. "There were a lot of rules, but the big, simple one was to never leave the cave at night. And the door was so heavy, you would think it would be easy to remember." he said looking over at Hiccup.

"So easy to remember!" Fishlegs said.

"I know!" Stoick replied, while Hiccup hid his face in his hands, groaning. Stoick continued.

"But while everyone was asleepâ€¦he went out anywayâ€¦"

"No!" the family said.

"Yes!"

"And no sooner than he did, his cave was destroyed and everyone had to go on this long, sucky walk, with some weirdo they met and died!" He said, smashing his hand the rock, like in all his other stories. Jack jumped.

"The end." Stoick smiled.

Jack was amazed. "Woah! I did not see that coming, twist ending! My stories never end like that." He said. Everyone looked over at him.

"Yes! Two stories in one night!" Fishlegs said as the family crawled their way over to Jack. "Um..okay, but it won't be as good as Stoick's." he said. Stoick sat down and looked angrily at Jack.

"Once upon a time" Jack started. "There was a adorable fishbone." Hiccup moved closer, smiling.

"He lived in a cave with the rest of his family. His father and mother told him: You may go anywhere you want, but never go near the cliff, for you could fall.-"

"And die." Stoick interrupted. "Good story." he said. The family started to get up. "But when no one was looking.." Jack continued, causing the family to look back at him and sit back down. "He would go near the cliff. For the closer he came to the edge, the more he could hear, the more he could see, the more he could feel." Hiccup was entranced with every word Jack said. "Finally he stood at the very edge, he saw a light. he leaned out to touch it. And he slipped."

The family gasped.

"And he fell." Stoick smiled evilly.

"And he flew." Jack said.

Stoicks evil grin fell back into its grumpy form.

"Where did he fly?" Fishlegs asked.

"Tomorrow." Jack told him. "Tomorrow?" Hiccup asked.

"A place with more suns in the sky than you can count." Jack said. The family looked up at the sky. "It would be so bright." Fishlegs said.

"A place not like today, or yesterday. A place where things are better." Jack continued.

"Tomorrow isn't a place. It's..it's..it's..you can't see it!" Stoick argued.

"Oh yes. Yes it is. I've seen it." Jack argued back. At this, the family looked back up again, their mouths wide open. "That's where I'm going!"

Hiccup looked back down to see Jack staring at him, smiling. He could have sworn he saw Jack sigh and blush as well. Stoick looked over at the two boys, frowning. He grabbed Hiccup and pulled him away, then doing it again with the rest of the family.

"Well, we are going to shut our eyes and sleep. And when we wake up, we're going to find the place that has everything we want." he said

"Tomorrow?" Hiccup asked, a smile on his face.

"A cave."

Ok~|.did you enjoy the fluff? Did you? No? Yes?

Anyway..

Ok so as you should all know, about a month ago, I held a poll for what story I should upload first. You guys chose "How To Train Your Boyfriend" so look out for that story. Also I would like to ask, do you guys want me to do the "She's The Man AU"? I'm not really sure if I should do it, because there is so much that goes on in the movie so I want your opinions. One more thing. I am thinking about doing another Hijack AU, which I will tell you about in my "How To Train Your Boyfriend" story, which I am working on at the moment.

7. Jack's Time To Shine

Hi everyone! **

So another chapter of The Vikings! How long did this chapter take?! I'm so sorry! Anyway this is a good Christmas Eve present huh? Your welcome! :)

I think this chapter is mainly about Hiccup and Jack.

Enjoy!

â€œ

The next morning, Jack and the family continued their quest. However, Jack and Stoick seemed to be fighting..same with Gobber and Fishlegs while Val was trying to keep Toothless back from attacking them. Hiccup however, was lost in his own little world. He kept thinking about the night before, Jack's story. He wanted to know how the little fishbone flew to tomorrow. He finally got to courage to ask Jack about the story.

"Hey, um, Jack?" he asked, poking his nose. Jack looked at him, making him blush. "Do you have a minute? How did the little fishbone fly?" he asked. Jack frowned. "I only share when Im outside the log." he said "Im funny that way." Hiccup smirked, cracking his knuckles. "Leave this to me." he said. Jack widened his eyes and blushed.

"Hey, Fishlegs, you have a spider on your face!" Hiccup screamed. Fishlegs screamed. "WHERE, WHERE!?" Hiccup's answer was a punch to the face. Fishlegs was knocked back into Stoick, freeing Jack from his clutches. Stoick turned around and glared at his eldest. All Hiccup could do was shrug and say "Oops." Stoick turned around to see Jack out of the log, but he was now laying on a frozen lake. Jack pushed himself up with his elbows and looked down at the lake. He gulped.

Stoick growled and tried to chase after Jack. However, he slipped on the ice and it led him back to the family. Hiccup walked forward but his dad stopped him. "Hiccup stop, it dangerous." Hiccup growled. "Dad, you say that about everything!" He started walking again. Jack stood up and yelled at him from across the lake.

"Careful!" He yelled. "Really? Okay!" Hiccup said stepping away from the lake. Stoick had his jaw open. He growled at Jack, but he didn't notice.

"Do not walk on that lake!" He said to the rest of the family. He shivered. Fishlegs pulled a confused face on. "You mean this lake?" He asked starting to walk on it before slipping and falling flat on his face. "Ow!" he said. "Do not walk on that lake!" Gobber rolled his eyes. "Step aside, girl." he said pushing Fishlegs aside and stepping on the lake, before slipping himself. "Hello? Nobody's listening! No one is listening!" Stoick widened his eyes and slapped a hand to his face, shaking his head. At this point everyone except Hiccup were walking and slipping on the lake. Stoick tried helping them but it didn't work. Hiccup sighed and looked down at his feet. Jack sighed and walked over to them.

"I can help you, but we're going to have to make a few changes around here." Jack said. The family stopped trying to walk and started listening to Jack.

"The log ride is over" He said. Seriousness in his voice. Stoick growled but had a face that looked defeated. "Okay then Jack. Now what?" Stoick said. Jack just smiled and exchanged looks with Baby Tooth.

â€

Jack smiled. "Ok!" Jack said as he looked at the lake. He decided that the family was going to learn how to skate across the lake. He taught Stoick first, so that way he could teach the others while he taught Hiccup. Stoick obeyed but still didn't think it was a good idea. He decided that he would keep an eye on Jack when he was with Hiccup. Jack looked over at Hiccup. He smiled and reached out for his hands. Hiccup however, frowned and hesitated. "What are you doing? He asked." Jack's smile fell, but he tried again. When Hiccup hesitated again, he looked up at him. "Just trust me." He said. Hiccup looked at him. He raised his hands shakily, but took Jack's hands. Jack looked up at him and gave him a small smile.

Jack walked backwards onto the lake and slowly led Hiccup across. Jack noticed that Hiccup was a little scared. He squeezed his hands lightly, to tell him that he would be ok. Hiccup slipped a few times and did a few gasps when he did, but when he did, Jack would tell him to look at him to get his mind off of the ice, or he would say everything would be ok.

Hiccup started to notice, that with every step, Jack started to get quieter. He decided to ask.

"What's wrong?"

Jack looked at him and sighed. "It's justâ€€.I don't really like waterâ€€,especially when it's frozen." Hiccup pulled a confused face. "Why?" He asked. Jack looked away. Hiccup knew that Jack wasn't ready to tell him that yet. Hiccup just sighed. "Tell me later?" Jack nodded and smiled a bit.

It was at that moment Hiccup slipped and fell onto Jack. Jack groaned from the pain. "You're really heavyâ€" he said. Hiccup smiled. "Really? Thank You!" He said. Stoick had turned around and noticed his son on Jack. He panicked and went over to them.

"Hey, wait! Whoa!" He said. He pulled Hiccup off Jack. Jack stood up and was greeting with Stoick in his face. He was clearly angry. "WOAH!" He said. It scared Jack. He jumped back and tried to act normal. "Okay, he's up. We're good. I'm good." he said.

Stoick nodded and pulled a smile at his family. "Let's get to that mountain!" He said. The family started walking across the lake. Some of them slipped, but got back up. Jack and hiccup were the last to cross. "Hey Jack?" He asked. Jack looked at him. "Yeah?" "How did the fishbone fly?" He asked almost tripping Jack caught him in time. Jack laughed. "He jumped on the sun and rode it to Tomorrow." he said. Looking ahead of them. Hiccup sighed happily. Stoick just rolled his eyes as they kept going.

â€|

After they had passed the lake, the family continued across to get to the mountain. Stoick stopped them though when he saw a huge jungle in front of them that looked to be a maze. He didn't know what to do. But Jack did. He pulled out a ton of shells and gave them to each family member.

"Here you go."

"Thanks!"

"One for you."

"Thank You."

"And this one's for you.." Jack said as he handed Stoick a shell. The family was so excited that they blew their shells, creating a really REALLY loud noise. Stoick blocked his ears as Jack smirked. "Okay. Okay. That's enough!" he screamed, making the family stop. "I don't see why the kids need their own shells." he said. Jack rolled his eyes. "So if anyone gets in trouble, we can call the others." he said holding his shell up. "Wait, you're saying we should split up?" Stoick laughed. "We can try more paths at once. It's the fastest way through!" Jack argued. "We stick together. Your way isn't safe." "They can handle it." "We can do it Dad." Hiccup said, going over to Jack. "No, no, no, no, no. Its my job to keep you safe. Im still in charge, and we are not splitting up." he said.

Hiccup smirked and started nuzzling up to Jack. This made the older male blush and Stoick growl.

"Except for you two." He said, pushing Jack and Hiccup away from each other.

"And that's final."

â€|

"Hello? Hello? Is everyone all right?" Stoick asked.

Before the family could go in, the mountain they were standing on pushed them into the sky and had gotten them lost in different areas. Gobber was with Val and Toothless, while Stoick, Jack, Hiccup and Fishlegs were by themselves.

"We're okay, Stoick!" Val tried to reassure him.

"Dad? I'm freaking out a little bit. Just tell me what to do. Just what do I do? What do I do right now?" Fishlegs said. "Stay where you are! I'll find you." He said.

"No! Too slow. Everybody, keep moving forward and we'll get out." Jack said. Stoick sighed and nodded. There was gonna be no way out of this. "Yeah. Okay. Remember, never not be afraid." He told the family, but mainly Fishlegs. "You can do this!" Jack added.

"It's gonna be okay. It's gonna be okay." Fishlegs talked to himself. "I'm gonna pass outâ€¦" he said.

Meanwhile, Val and Gobber where with their own problems. "Toothless! Toothless!" Val called out for her son as he chased after a butterfly.

Hiccup however, was enjoying his time away from his family. he ran into a new part of the maze with streams and flowers flowing everywhere. He went over to the stream and looked in his reflection before a flower landed and covered it. He picked up the flower and giggled. Little did he know that Jack was the one who threw the flower at him and was hiding and watching. Jack smiled as the auburn haired boy got closer to where he was hiding. He looked over at baby tooth. "Give me another one." he whispered to her. "You dropped these!" Hiccup said as he appeared out of no where. Jack jumped and fell over. Hiccup just giggled as he put the flower on jacks mouth and skipped away slowly. Jack blew the flower of with his mouth and smiled goofily.

He got up and followed Hiccup to the exit. He ran over to Hiccup who was giggling at him. Jack smiled. He had never felt this way before. He thought he liked girls. Was heâ€¦was he turning gay for Hiccup? Jack's smile fell. He grabbed Hiccup's hand. Hiccup stopped giggling and looked up at Jack. He was still smiling. "Come with me." Jack said. Hiccup's smile fell. But he was still happy. Their faces got closer and closer beforeâ€¦

"Hey guys look! I got a new pet!" the boys looked to see that Fishlegs, did indeed have a new pet. It appeared to be a girl Gronkle. According to Jack of course. Hiccup smiled at his brother. "Where did you find her?" Jack asked. "Wellâ€¦I was walking and I found her rolling in some mud. I thought she was a monster so I threw my shell at her, but she gave it back to me." He said proudly.

Val and Gobber came out just seconds later.

"Mom, Gobber!" Hiccup said. Relieved they were ok. A noise started echoing throughout the maze. "Stoick? I'll go get him." She said. She put toothless down and went in to go get him.

â€¦

When Val found Stoick, she led him to where the others were. They were staying in up in a tree for the night.

Fishlegs was really enjoying his new pet. "Oh, good girl Who's my good girl? You are. Yes, you are. Look at you. You need a name? You want a name? I'm gonna call you Meatlug." He said. "Can you do tricks? Roll over. Come on, Meatlug Roll over." he said. Meatlug dragon obeyed and rolled over. But, she rolled over the edge of the tree and fell. Fishlegs looked over at the edge. "Good girl, Meatlug!" He said. Meanwhile Gobber was telling Toothless and Hiccup some stories while Jack watched from a ledge.

Hiccup got up and went outside to get some fresh air. From where he was, he could hear his parents arguing.

"Vikings, get down here!" He heard Stoick say.

"Stoick, they're okay. Jack's with them." Val said.

"Oh, Jack's with them. Oh, okay. Well, thank you, thank you for bringing me that interesting Jack update." Hiccup rolled his eyes. Sarcasm.

"Oh, okay. I'm gonna go up..and why don't you join us when you stop being a big drag!" She said. Hiccup then knew it was time to go back inside. He looked over to where Jack was and went up. "

"And then Thork said: "Know it, I drew it." Gobber said. Toothless and Fishlegs laughed, Jack laughed from above as well. "Hey you.." he turned around and saw Hiccup smiling at him. He smiled back and patted the spot next to him. Hiccup sat down.

"Soâ€|" Hiccup started.

"Soâ€|" Jack said as well.

"Earlier at the lake you told me you didn't like water, or ice or anythingâ€|why?" Hiccup asked looking over at Jack. Jack sighed. He knew Hiccup was going to ask sooner or later.

"Wellâ€|.earlier in my lifeâ€|I had a family. I had a little sister too. We went on wild, crazy adventures and stuff. But one day we went ice skating and the ice was cracking andâ€|.I tried toâ€|" Hiccup noticed Jack getting softer in every word he said. "It was too late thoughâ€|" He said tears rolling down his face. Hiccup looked at him and got closer to him. He grabbed his hand stroking the back of it with his thumb.

"It wasn't your faultâ€|" he managed to say. Jack looked at him and smiled. Jack leaned towards him and placed his head on his shoulder. Hiccup smiled. Jack got up. "I wanna show you something." He said. Hiccup grabbed the rest of the family and followed Jack.

Meanwhile, Stoick started to notice it was getting quieter. He started climbing up the tree to them. Jack helped them up the tree. When he knew the time was right, he blew the torch he was holding out. Millions of stars surrounded them in the sky. well, they didn't know that they were stars. "More suns in the sky than you can countâ€|" Fishlegs gasped.

"Every sun that crosses our sky comes to rest up there.." Jack told them. "Tomorrowâ€|" Hiccup said. Jack nodded. "Thats where we'll be safe.." He added. "I'm going with Jack.." Hiccup said. Little did they know, was that Stoick was hiding underneath them hearing every word they said. "No, not Hiccupâ€|" He whispered to himself. Hiccup looked at Val. "Come with us." He told her. She smiled but.. "I can't go without Stoick." She said.

"Well, that makes one of us. Count me in!" Gobber smiled. Val rolled her eyes. "Really Dad? Now?" She said. "Stoick has no idea how to protect us. In fact, he has no ideas at all!" he said. "No. That's not true. What about that one time he.. uh.. He.." Val tried to argue back, but had no comeback. "Oh, face it. If he actually had an idea of his own, I'd have, I'd have a heart attack and die!" Gobber said

Stoick smiled.

OHHHH YEAHHHH **

Anyway! Sorry this chapter took so long! I'm going away for the New Year and not bringing my laptop so I won't be on for a while, sorry! This is my last chapter of the year! **

Hope you enjoyed!

SNOWFLAKES AND DRAGONS xoxo

8. A Twist

Hi everyone! So I'm back from my holiday and I was going to update this earlier but ever since I've gotten back I've been busy going out since my family wants to see me and everything soâ€| **

Anyway I'm gonna try and finish this story soon because school is gonna start up again and I really wanna get some good grades this year and I'm gonna be starting up my Big Hero 6 AU so I really want to finish this and some of my other stories as well. AHHHH EVERYTHING IS A MESS!

Enjoy!

â€" **

After Stoick heard that his family was going with Jack, he waited till everyone fell asleep and then stayed up all night planning something for them. What was the plan you ask? You'll see.

In the morning the family looked around for Stoick.

"Stoick?"

"Dad?"

"Dad!"

"He's a big guy, how can he just disappear like that?" Jack asked Hiccup. Hiccup just shrugged. "Hey! Hey, wait! I see him!" Fishlegs said pointing in the direction. Everyone looked where he was pointing. Yep, Stoick was indeed there. His back was facing the family, he was hiding behind a rock with many large tree branches next to him. He turned around to face them.

"Oh hey everyone!" Stoick smiled.

"What are you doing?" Val asked him.

"Yeah, Well I was up all night. Thinking about how we could kill monsters that try to kill us." Jack looked at Hiccup. He was frowning and shaking his head a little. He looked back at Stoick. "Uhâ€¦why?" he asked. Stoick looked him like he was an idiot. "So we can protect ourselves stupid!" he said, smacking his forehead. Jack rolled his eyes. Stoick looked out from behind the rock he was hiding behind and noticed a Deadly Nadder, one of the most strongest dragons that could be known in the world. Stoick smiled and looked down to pick up one of the branches. "Here hiccup, take this stick andâ€¦kill that dragon over there." Stoick said, pointing to the dragon. Hiccup looked over at where he was pointing and widened his eyes. He shook his head and started to back away.

Stoick picked up the log and threw it in Hiccup's direction. As the log was flung into the air and started coming back down, Hiccup just frowned and looked at it. Before it could hit him Jack flung in front of him and caught the log. He looked behind him at Hiccup who looked away and blushed, rubbing his arm with his hand. Jack blushed himself and handed the log to him. The log was so heavy, that when Hiccup caught it, he fell to the ground. Jack helped him up. Hiccup smiled and nodded to Jack as if to say thank you. Hiccup dragged himself over to his dad.

"Dadâ€¦I don't wanna fight dragonsâ€¦" he said. Stoick looked at him and laughed. "Don't be silly! Of course you do!" Stoick smiled. He grabbed his son and started pulling him along to the dragon. Hiccup looked back at Val.

"Momâ€¦?" he whispered.

"It's.. I know. It's bad." she whispered back.

"Ok Hiccup go!" Stoick said pushing him toward the dragon. Hiccup gulped as the dragon looked up and roared at him. It started to walk towards him and then start running. Reallyâ€¦really fast.

The family watched in terror. Jack was about to run to Hiccup's side, when Hiccup dropped the branch and held out his hand and looked away from the dragon. The dragon stopped running just seconds before he could smash into hiccup. It started sniffing his hand before he licked it. Hiccup looked at him now. The dragon then started nuzzling up to Hiccup while he laughed. Jack smiled. He looked over at Stoick who's mouth was wide open and went over to him.

"Stoick, we have to keep movingâ€¦" he said putting his hand on his shoulder. Stoick just pushed him away. "No, no no! Hiccup what was that!?" he said going over to him. Hiccup looked at him and rolled his eyes. He let Stoick continue. "You were supposed to kill the dragon not befriend it!" he said.

The dragon looked at him and growled. He started getting closer to Stoick.

"Uh ohâ€¦" he said, starting to run away. The dragon followed and ran after him. Hiccup went over to Jack and watched as Stoick was chased by the dragon. Gobber shook his head. "I almost feel sorry for himâ€¦" he said. Jack and Hiccup then flinched as Stoick screamed. The dragon had bitten his butt.

Gobber laughed.

"No, I don't."

â€¦

After the dragon went away and Jack gave Stoick a pair of pants, they continued on their quest, to get to the mountain. He asked the family to find him some materials for a boat. After they found materials, Jack asked Hiccup to help him make the boat. After finishing it up, Jack helped them inside, well, except Stoick because he shoved himself in. Hiccup and Jack kept the branch that Stoick gave Hiccup so they could use it so Jack could steer the boat. Jack was at the front with Hiccup who had Toothless in his arms, Gobber and Fishlegs were behind them and Val and Stoick were at the back.

Val looked at Stoick and shook her head. "What are you trying to do, Stoick?" she asked. Stoick sighed. "I thought if I could act more cool than Jack.." he started, looking forward at the white haired male. "Uhâ€¦maybe Hiccup would listen to me. Maybe he wouldn't want to go with Jackâ€¦" He finished, looking down. Val shook her head again. "Oh Stoickâ€¦is that what this is all about?" When he didn't answer her, she opened her mouth to say something but she was then interrupted from him. "And I also thought it would kill your father, soâ€¦you know, win-win." he smiled slightly. She rolled her eyes and slapped her forehead.

Jack interrupted the conversation. "We're here!" He said.

Everyone got up and looked at the mountain in awe.

Jack helped everyone, except Stoick of course, out of the boat. They continued to look at it in awe. But then the ground started shaking. If they didn't move, the whole mountain would collapse. Stoick started to panic. He covered the family and looked around. He noticed a small cave in the mountain. "Cave!" he said, relieved, starting to push them towards it.

"Everyone inside!"

"Dad wait..!"

"Come on! Hurry up! Let's go! Let's go! Go! Go!"

"No!" Hiccup screamed pushing away from his father's grip. The family followed his actions.

Stoick looked back at his family, looking at him with anger and hatred. Val shook her head. "No more caves, Stoick." she said.

"What?" he said confused.

Val opened her mouth to say something else but was interrupted, again, by Gobber. "We're gonna jump on the sun and ride it to Tomorrow with Jack!" he said with enthusiasm. Stoick shook his head in disbelief. "Wait, wait, so you're all going to do this?" he asked. When no one answered, he turned to his son. "Fishlegs?" he asked. Fishlegs looked up at him "Sorry, Dad." he said. He looked back down. "You have to stop worrying for all of us." Hiccup told him. Stoick looked at him like he was crazy. "It's my job to worry. It's my job to follow the rules." "The rules don't work out here!" Hiccup argued back. "They kept us alive!" "That wasn't living! That was just..not dying! There's a difference!" Stoick looked at them "Everyone, you have to listen to me!" he said moving himself closer to them. Hiccup pushed Stoick away from him and the family. "For once in your life would you please just listen to me!?" he screamed in Stoick's face. Stoick widened his eyes. The rest of the family watched Hiccup in shock. He pulled away. "We have to follow Jack now!" he said, looking away. His voice sounded high pitched because he was holding back the tears. The family looked behind them at Jack. Jack looked up to notice everyone's eyes on him. He looked at Stoick.

"Jack.." Stoick growled.

Jack widened his eyes. "Jack, run!" Val told him. Jack obeyed and started running. Stoick ran after him.

Stoick caught up to him and grabbed him, making the both of them fall and stumbled down a hill. Hiccup and Val were following them but because they were so fast, they started to lose them.

After falling,

Jack broke free from Stoick's grip and ran further away. His feet started to get colder and colder and he started to slip. He stopped in his tracks and slowly looked down. "Thin ice.." he said to himself. They were on a frozen lake. Stoick stopped behind him and realised as well. Ice started cracking beneath their feet. Jack widened his eyes and started to panic a bit.

Stoick started to panic as well..a lot..

"No, no, no!" he said. He tried to struggle his way over back to the land. The ice started to crack more. "Stoick!" Jack warned.

"No! Please.. "

"Stoick no!"

"No! I have to get back to them!"

"You have to stop moving!"

"No!"

"Stoick, STOP!" Jack screamed at him. Stoick stopped and looked at him. Jack shook his head and sighed. "Listen you can't get out of this without falling. Believe me. I know." he said. Stoick realised what he meant. "Because Your-" "Sister..yeah" "Sorry" "I was little when it happened. I tried to save her but..she didn't make it..I've been blaming myself ever since..but now I'm more confident and I now know that things happen for different reasons." Jack told him, smiling a bit. Stoick nodded. "Oh..listen about hiccup and the others..and how I acted-" "No its ok.. your just over protectiveâ€¦ its normal for a father. Hiccup loves you, you know, but..you keep protecting him and telling him to stay away from everything. Being to protective, creates curiosity. And when you wanted him to kill a dragon, he didn't because he found another way. There's always another wayâ€¦"

Stoick thought about this for a second. He then smiled at Jack. "That's right.." he said. "We need one of your ideas.." Jack looked at him and slightly smiled. "Come on, you can do it.."

Jack stood there for a moment, his thumb resting on his lip as he thought. He looked up and smiled a second later.

"Ooh, I've got â€¦I don't know if it will work.. " he said, facing Stoick.

Stoick shrugged his shoulders. "Just try..okâ€¦" Stoick told him.

"Okâ€¦well we are gonna play hopscotch.." he told him. Stoick just looked at him, confused. "Oh uhâ€¦ its a game me and my sister used to play everydayâ€¦" Jack told him. Stoick nodded. "Okâ€¦uhâ€¦" he started, looking around. Suddenly he noticed a staff in the snow around him. Looking closer, he saw that it kind of resembled a shepherds crook. He then got an idea.

"Baby Tooth!" he called for her. She appeared from out of his pocket. "Can you get that for me?" he motioned his head towards the staff. She nodded and flew over to it, picking it up. It was too heavy for her, so she dragged it along. "Thank you." he said as he grabbed it from her. He started moving along the ice.

"Okâ€¦its easy.." he said. "1.." he said, as he took a step. Stoick watched him carefully. "2.." he said taking another step. "3..!" he said, finally reaching the land. Stoick smiled at him. "Okâ€¦" Jack said turning towards him.

"Your turnâ€¦" Jack held out the staff towards him.

"1.."

Stoick started moving towards him.

"Thats it thats it.." Jack said pulling the staff closer to him.

"2â€¦..3!" Jack leaned forward and grabbed Stoick with the staff and pulled him towards him, switching their places. Jack was now back on the ice and Stoick was in his place.

Val and Hiccup watched what had happened. They Val smiled and went over to Stoick. Hiccup looked at Jack who was smiling at him. He smiled back. "Haha haha!" Jack laughed. Then Hiccup heard a crack. He looked underneath Jack's feet.

He then watched as the ice cracked and Jack disappeared under the water.

â€¦

Ok! So anyway did you like that twist? You probably hate me now.

Anyway the new chapter should be up soon after I do another chapter of A Dream Is A Wish Your Heart Makes. Anyway I hope you enjoyed this chapter!
